THE HAWAIIAN TREATY.

The Annexation Convention Sent to the Senate.

JAPAN HAS ENTERED A PROTEST.

The Plenipotentiaries Sign the Document in the Diplomatic Room of the State Department—Transmitted to the Senate With a Message From President McKinley—The Proposed Conditions.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—President McKinley sent to the Senate the draft of a new treaty for the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands by the United States, signed at the State Department Wednesday morning, together with a message giving a historical review of the relations between the islands and the United States, and urging the ratification of the treaty. Immediately after its delivery by Private Secretary Pruden, on motion of Senator Davis, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and its executive session and the message and treaty were read.

The treaty was signed by the plenipotentiaries of the United States and Hawaii, appointed by their respective Governments, for that purpose, in the diplomatic room of the State Department at 9.30 o'clock a. m. There was no one present save the high contracting parties, the Assistant Secretary and the representatives of the press. The treaty was signed in duplicate by Secretary Sherman for the United States, and Messrs. Francis M. Hatch and Special Commissioners Lorin M. Thurston and H. W. Kinney for Hawaii. A new gold pen was used. After the signatures had been attached and hearty congratulations exchanged a photographer perpetuated the scene by the aid of the camera.

The formal signature of the document by the Secretary of State was presented with a formal protest by the Japanese Government, through its legation here, against the consummation of the agreement.

The treaty provides that the Government of the Hawaiian Islands cedes to the United States and forever all rights of sovereignty in and over the Hawaiian Islands and its dependencies and that these islands shall become an integral part of the territory of the United States. The Government of Hawaii also cedes to the United States all public lands, public buildings and public property of every description.

The treaty shall enact special laws to govern the disposition of the lands in the Hawaiian Islands. All revenue from these lands shall be used solely for the benefit of the inhabitants of the Hawaiian Islands for educational and other public purposes.

The Hawaiian Islands shall be admitted into the Union as a Territory of the United States, local laws to be passed by a local Legislature, but subject to the approval of the President.

Until Congress shall apply the laws of the United States to the islands, the present laws of Hawaii are to govern the islands.

The present treaties and laws governing Hawaii's commercial relations with foreign nations shall remain in force until Congress shall take action. Further immigration of Chinese laborers is prohibited pending Congressional action, and the entry of Chinese from Hawaii into the United States likewise is prohibited.

The United States assumes the public debt of Hawaii, but with a stipulation that this liability shall not exceed $4,000,000. The treaty before it becomes effective shall be ratified by the proper authorities of the United States and Hawaii.

No mention is made of any gratuity to Liliuokalani or Kalakaua.

The news of the protest of Japan was a great surprise to the Hawaiian Legation. The essential point as to the protest, it is said at the Hawaiian Legation, is whether the protest is against the annexation of Hawaii or is merely a protest reserving to Japan all her rights under the existing treaty with Hawaii. It is believed that it is the latter. This treaty, made in 1871, provides that natives or citizens of one country shall have the uninterrupted right to enter into, reside and trade in the other country. Under international law the annexation of Hawaii to the United States would abrogate this treaty. Moreover, a new treaty between the United States and Japan made some time ago, to become effective Aug. 4, 1899, provides that the United States may exclude Japanese if Hawaii is annexed the effect would be to permit the United States to exclude the Japanese from Hawaii.

MINISTER TO SPAIN CHOSEN.

The President nominated Stewart L. Woodford, of New York, to be Minister to Spain.

Stewart Lyndon Woodford was born in New York city on September 3, 1835. He is a descendant from Puritan stock in the eighth American generation. Mr. Woodford went to Columbia College, then to Yale, and in his junior year returned to Columbia and finished his course with high honor. He studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1857. He was a natural campaign speaker and took the stump for Lincoln in 1860. When the war began Mr. Woodford enlisted. He rose to Captain, Lieutenant-Colonel, and for gallantry was promoted to the rank of Colonel and brevetted Brigadier-General. In 1866 General Woodford was elected Lieutenant-Governor, the youngest man that ever presided over the State Senate. Four years later General Woodford was the Republican candidate for Governor of New York, but was defeated by John T. Hoffman. General Woodford represented the Third District in Congress in 1872. He was a candidate for Vice-President in 1876, but withdrew in favor of William A. Wheeler. General Woodford was a member of the Greater New York Commission. He has made a fortune from his law practice.

PRESIDENT'S SUMMER HOME.

He Will Pass the Heated Months at "Cherry Farm," Near Washington.

President McKinley has chosen the place for his summer residence. It is known as "Cherry Farm," seven miles southwest of Washington, just back of Fort Myer, and is reached by several beautiful drives from the city, one leading through Fort Myer and another through Arlington. "Cherry Farm" is the property of ex-Senator John B. Henderson, of Missouri.

REDSKIN LEGALLY SHOT.

Father and Brother Put Bullets Into Chokat Ebin's Body.

In the presence of the members of his tribe, Chokat Ebin, a full-blooded Creek Indian, was shot to death near Perry, Oklahoma, for the murder of Lama Anthony. Ebin was shot by his father, Riley Ebin, and his brother, Paiko Ebin.

Three weeks before Chokat Ebin, during a quarrel with Lama Anthony, shot the latter dead. He was sentenced to be shot on June 4. When the day arrived Ebin sent word to the Governor that he was sick and not able to attend his execution, and the Governor respited him till the 14th.

It is law among the Creek Indians that a victim for the gibbet or the shooting squad can choose his own executioner; that is, he can kill himself, or two of his nearest relatives can shoot him. In this case Ebin chose his father and brother to shoot him.

FATAL STORM OFF CHINA.

Five Hundred Fishermen of the Chusan Archipelago Perish.

Meagre particulars were brought by the Empress of Japan of a disaster which befell the fishermen of Chusan Archipelago, off the coast of China. On May 6, when most of the fishing boats were out on the fishing banks a terrific gale sprung up. Of the several hundred boats out at the time only five returned, and it is estimated that some 500 men lost their lives.

The storm was one of those sudden ones for which the coast of China is noted, and the fishermen had no chance to seek shelter. The storm swept over the entire Archipelago, which extends across the mouth of Hangchow Bay on the western coast of China. Several large junks were lost in which scores perished.

FANCIULLI TO BE DISMISSED.

Marine Band Leader Found Guilty of Disobedience of Orders.

The court-martial which recently tried Professor Fanciulli, leader of the Marine Band, Washington, on charges growing out of his refusal to play certain marches ordered to be played on Memorial Day by Lieutenant Draper of the Marine Corps, has found him guilty of disobedience of orders and has recommended his dismissal from the service. Colonel Heywood, commandant of the corps, has approved the recommendation, and it has been forwarded to the Navy Department.

The Centennial of Augusta, Me.

Augusta, Me., has just celebrated its centennial anniversary. The city was elaborately decorated. The day was ushered in with a ringing of bells of the city churches. The exercises of the afternoon began at 2 o'clock. J. W. Bradbury, President of the day, is the oldest living ex-United States Senator. He will be ninety-five years old. The invocation was given by the Rev. Daniel Cony Weston, of Washington, D. C. Chief Justice M. W. Fuller, of the United States Supreme Court, delivered the oration.

Schulz Found Guilty of Wife Murder.

The jury in the Herman Paul Schulz wife murder case at Milford, Penn., after being out all night, brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree. The murderer was brought before the Judge to hear the verdict, and bowed very low and smiled. In a belt around the waist was found a fine three-cornered file and a one-foot bolt saw. In the corner of his right shoe was a six-bladed knife. He was much depressed after this discovery.

Named by the President.

The President sent to the Senate the following nominations: To be Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States, Henry L. Wilson, of Washington, to Chile; William F. Powell, of New Jersey, to Haiti; John G. A. Leishman, of Pennsylvania, to Switzerland; John F. Gowey, of Washington, to be Consul-General at Kanagawa, Japan.

British Steamer Founders at Sea.

The British steamer Sultan, Captain Collin, of over 2000 tons, bound from Jeddah for Calcutta with a large number of Mecca pilgrims on board, has foundered near the Island of Socotra, 120 miles east of Cape Guardafui, the eastern extremity of Africa. Ten natives were drowned, but all the crew of the Sultan and the remainder of the pilgrims were saved.

ELLIS ISLAND FIRE SWEPT

Main Building of the Immigrant Station Completely Destroyed.

FAMOUS GATEWAY TO AMERICA.

Blaze Started in the Second Story of the Great Immigration Building—Rescue of Two Hundred Frightened Immigrants—Property of the Poor Home Seekers Destroyed in the Storerooms.

NEW YORK CITY (Special).—The big immigrant landing bureau at Ellis Island was reduced to ashes early Tuesday morning, and two hundred and fifty immigrants barely escaped with their lives. There were forty patients in the wooden hospital building in the rear of the main structure who were carried out in cots just before the hospital took fire. The immigrants and patients were safely landed at the Barge Office pier at 2 o'clock a. m. Not one of them received so much as a burn.

What caused this sudden conflagration is and may remain a mystery. William Burke, chief of the night watch on Ellis Island, declares he does not know the cause of the fire. The fire started in the east end or side of the main structure, which is more than 1000 feet long and two stories in height. The first floor of this building is almost entirely given up to baggage, while the eastern end of the second story is used for offices. The middle and southern portion is used for a landing bureau and detention rooms.

It was in this part of the building that most of the 250 people detained on Ellis Island were sleeping. The fire started in the end of the building toward New York, and was not at first noticed in the detention rooms, which are cut off from that portion by partitions.

When Chief Night Watchman Burke noticed the fire it was licking around one of the towers. He at once summoned the thirty men employed under him, who quickly unlocked the iron gates leading into the detention room, and aroused the sleepers, who were reposing on benches and on wire cots, which the bureau provides.

One of the night watchmen was also sent on the jump across the bridge to the woman's dormitory, contained in a two-story building in the rear of the landing depot.

Meantime the men in the main building had been rushed out and down the main double stairway, at the west end, to the boat.

Surgeon J. H. White and Assistant Surgeons White and Gideon had been aroused by this time and they at once began to remove the forty patients in the hospital. It was seen at a glance that the big main building was doomed, and it required quick work to carry out the helpless sick before the blistering heat prevented an approach to the hospital building.

Meantime some of the immigrants who had escaped from the main building had become anxious about their baggage, and despite the fact that the vast building was fast being encompassed by the flames, rushed back to save it.

In all the known tongues they insisted that their all was contained in the boxes and bundles which they had brought over. Captain Burke and his men had to fairly fight them back on the boat. They wept and wrung their hands when they found it was impossible to save their property.

The new immigration depot at Ellis Island, New York Harbor, was opened on New Year's Day, 1891. The structure was of gigantic proportions. It was built at a cost of about $500,000. An idea of the building's immense size may be gained from the fact that more than four million feet of lumber were used in its construction. The huge building covered the greater part of the Island, the area of which was something less than five acres, but this was increased to about eight by driving spiles about the water front and filling in the vacant spaces with earth. The building was three stories in height, with a tower at each corner. The ground and upper floors measured each 404 by 154 feet. The first floor was devoted to railroad and baggage transfers and private offices. On the second floor the registrations and examinations were conducted. Among the general features of the building was a gallery which extended completely around this floor. From this the immigrants could be inspected by the public or those interested in them, without coming into actual contact with them. There were rooms for paupers, another for lunatics, another for those suspected of being contract laborers, another for women and children, and so on. The telegraph and money exchange offices, postal stations, information bureau, railroad and steamship offices were all arranged so as to give the new-comers the least possible inconvenience. Sleeping-rooms were provided on the floor above.

BARNEY BARNATO COMMITS SUICIDE.

The World Famous "King of the Kaffirs" Jumps Into the Sea.

Barney Barnato is dead. The South African "diamond king," who in a few years rose from the position of an "assisted" British immigrant to the position of five hundred times a millionaire, committed suicide by jumping overboard from the steamer Scot, that left Table Bay, Cape Town, South Africa, June 2, for Southampton, England. The news comes in a cable dispatch from Funchal, Island of Madeira, off the west coast of Morocco, where the British steamer Scot touches.

The report of Barnato's suicide was made at Funchal by the captain of the steamer Scot. His report was that Barnato, who had not shown the least sign of agitation, but who had kept rather more closely to his cabin than was his habit on board ship, suddenly appeared on deck while most of the passengers were in the saloon, and with a cry that the second officer thought was a curse, and a passenger says was only an unmeaning shriek, dashed over the side.

The engine were immediately reversed; life buoys were thrown to the man, who seemed to be struggling in the water, but he was either unable or unwilling to reach them. The drill for a "man overboard" on British steamships is efficient and prompt and no time was lost in getting out a boat.

They rowed back to where Barnato's body could be seen tossing on the waves, and in very few minutes the boatswain had his hand in Barnato's hair and in another moment he was in the boat. Every attempt was made to revive him, but artificial respiration, massaging of his abdomen and rolling him on a barrel were equally ineffective.

The most extraordinary character among modern money makers was dead; the man whose income a few years ago was placed at $25,000,000 a year.

Three Girls Killed by Lightning.

The lives of three young women were blotted out by lightning while they were on their way home from a church at Jacobsburg, Ohio. The victims are Minnie McGuire, daughter of the Rev. Thomas McGuire; Alpa Taylor, daughter of William Taylor, and Emma White, daughter of Simon White, all about nineteen years old. Sarah Bohring was badly stunned. They were residents of Jacobsburg, and were walking together in the road about a hundred yards from the church when they were struck by lightning. It is believed that the steel corsets worn by the young women led to their deaths, as Miss Bohring, who was only stunned, wore none.

GIANT SEESAW AT NASHVILLE.

Great Steel Structure Tilts People Two Hundred Feet in the Air.

There is no Ferris wheel at the Tennessee Centennial Exposition, but they have something which is quite as original, a giant seesaw that will tilt hundreds of people at once nearly 200 feet up into the air.

This gigantic seesaw is built entirely of steel and its height is greater than that of the Ferris wheel. A. J. Dyer, a Nashville man, designed it, and the thing occupies a prominent place on the Nashville Midway, which is known as "Vanity Fair." The seesaw is the most popular feature of the fair and visitors prefer to ride on it rather than to look at the many wonderful displays of arts, crafts and sciences that may be seen in the main buildings.

The foundation is placed on a terrace twenty-five feet high. The main support of the structure is a tower 100 feet in height, built entirely of steel. Across the top of this tower there is swung a rectangular steel beam 200 feet in length. On either end of this beam is suspended a car capable of holding about forty persons.

When one end of the beam is depressed and the other raised to its greatest limit the total height is somewhat under the height of the supporting tower. This makes the greatest height of the structure something less than 200 feet. To this must be added the height of the terrace, namely, twenty-five feet. A person, therefore, who takes a ride in this seesaw is gently lifted from the earth to an elevation of nearly 225 feet.

The motor and machinery are built especially for the seesaw, and, rather curiously, are located in the top of the tower, a fact which enables the engineer who runs the motor to assert that he is the highest in the world. The machinery drives the beam by means of cog gearing, operating on two large twenty-five-foot arcs.

MASSACRE OF A BRITISH FORCE.

Treacherous Natives on India's Frontier Annihilate a Military Column.

A despatch from Simla, the residence of the Indian Government officials during the heated periods of the year, announces serious trouble on the northern frontier and the massacre of a number of British officers and native soldiers in the Government employ.

From the particulars abtainable at present it seems that two guns belonging to a Bombay mounted battery, escorted by 300 men belonging to the First Regiment of Sikhs and to the First Punjab Infantry, were treacherously attacked in the Tochi Valley by a large force of hostile natives.

The first reports said that Colonel Bunny, two officers and twenty-five privates had been killed, and that three officers and twenty-five privates had been wounded. In addition, numbers of mules and horses are reported killed.

Further details show that a political officer, Mr. Gee, was visiting Shirani with an escort of troops, when he was attacked at Maiza by vastly superior forces. The British troops were compelled to retreat, and were followed for several miles by overwhelming numbers of the enemy.

The fighting was desperate. All the British officers were severely wounded. Captain Browne, of the First Sikhs, a son of the late Sir James Browne, and Lieutenant Schapte, of the Royal Artillery, were killed, and Surgeon Higginson, Lieutenant of the First Sikhs, and Lieutenant Seaton-Browne, of the Punjab infantry, were wounded.

AGED WOMAN STARVED TO DEATH.

Her Idiotic Brother Sat Beside the Body —Large Sums of Money In the House.

Miss Hannah King, aged eighty-five, was found dead in bed at her home in Philadelphia, and sitting beside her on a chair, alive, was her idiotic brother, a man about her age. There was every indication that the woman had been dead for some time, and that her death was due to starvation. The only food found in the house was a crust of bread as hard as a stone and covered with mould. The two occupied the same house for fifty years, but for the last eight years have seldom been seen on the streets. The aged couple possessed considerable property between them, which, it is said, will amount to $100,000. It is believed that large sums of money are hidden about the house, and a squad of police has been placed on guard. The idiotic brother, who is unable to give any explanation, was sent to the Philadelphia Hospital.

THREE-CENT FARES UPHELD.

Supreme Court of Indiana Declares the Law Constitutional.

The Supreme Court of Indiana declared that the three-cent street car fare law is constitutional. It relates to Indianapolis only.

In the Federal Court recently the same law, passed by the last Legislature, was declared unconstitutional and injunctions were granted by Judge Showalter against its enforcement.

The State will insist on three-cent fares unless the street car company secures an injunction pending appeal to the Federal Supreme Court.

He Feared to Be Lynched.

It was developed in testimony at the inquest at Cincinnati, Ohio, on the death of Alfred Quick, who killed himself, that the motive was to escape mob vengeance. Quick had been discovered in the attempt to assault a girl ten years old, and with the Urbana incident fresh in his mind, took his own life rather than risk death at the hands of a mob.

THREW A BOMB AT FAURE.

The President of France Narrowly Escapes Death in Paris.

FIEND HID IN A THICKET.

The Chief Magistrate Was on His Way to the Races—There Was a Report, Then a Cloud of Smoke and Terrible Consternation — Evidences of Premeditated Assassination Hid in the Bushes.

PARIS, France (By Cable).—An attempt was made Sunday to assassinate Felix Faure, the President of the French Republic, while he was on his way to the horse races at Longchamps to witness the running of the famous Grand Prix.

While M. Faure's carriage was passing a thicket near La Cascade restaurant, in the Bois de Boulogne, a bomb, which subsequently proved to be a piece of tubing about six inches long and two inches in diameter, with a thickness of half an inch, charged with powder and swan shot, exploded.

FELIX FAURE.

No one was injured by the explosion. A man in the crowd, suspected as the prime mover, was arrested. He gave his name as Gallet, and made only brief replies to questions put to him by the police.

Gallet said that he had no occupation, but resided at Levallois-Perret. The police are making a thorough search of his lodgings. He is believed to be insane, for as the carriage passed along he shouted so loudly as to attract general attention in the crowd. The police have also made another arrest, in this case a youth, but it is thought probable that the actual culprit escaped in the thicket.

The news of the attempt spread like wildfire through the city, and when M. Faure returned to the Elysee the streets along the way where it was known he would drive were crowded with people, who cheered him vociferously.

It was at first reported that the would-be assassin was a young man about twenty-five, who stood in the crowd 100 yards or more from the racecourse and discharged the pistol as the carriage passed by to the entrance; and there was a subsequent report that both pistol and bomb were used. But the police now believe that the supposed pistol shot was merely the noise of the bomb.

The bomb was a clumsily made affair, to which a piece of fuse was attached and the fuse was probably lighted by a paper fixed in the end of a stick as soon as the head of the procession came into view. The presumption is that the moment the fuse was lighted the culprit fled; and in any case the bomb could not have done much harm.

In the thicket where the bomb was found the remnants of the bomb, they found also a pistol, upon which were engraved the words: "Mort a Felix Faure," and the names Alsace-Lorraine and Cologne. Near the pistol was a small dagger bearing a similar threatening inscription, and a few feet away the police found a newspaper with a cartoon grossly insulting to the President. This contained an offensive inscription hinting at the execution of M. Faure.

Several persons have stated to the police that the moment the explosion occurred a man was seen to run swiftly into the thicket, but reports of this character are likely to be mere conjecture.

An American correspondent talked with an official who was riding with M. Faure, who said:

"When the report was heard a dense cloud of smoke rose from the thicket, and there was terrible consternation, until it was found that no one had been injured. The police sprang forward, but found the thicket deserted. When the crowd saw one of the policemen holding the bomb, they jumped to the conclusion that he was the perpetrator of the outrage, and handled him roughly, clubbing him with heavy walking sticks and umbrellas, until his comrades rescued him, badly bruised and covered with blood. The President's cortege then proceeded to the racecourse."

The attempt on the life of M. Faure was made on the very spot where Berezowsky tried to shoot the Czar while driving to the military review at Longchamps, in 1867, and where Francais, a lunatic, last year fired his revolver at M. Faure on July 14.

DROPPED TO HER DEATH.

A Woman Balloonist Fell Into the Tennessee River and Was Drowned.

Mrs. Edith L. Bruno, a bold female balloonist, met a terrible death by drowning in the Tennessee River. The basket which she had relied upon as a buoy against the water, overturned and dragged her under. Her feet became entangled in the ropes and she was unable to extricate herself.

The accident occurred at Riverview Park, five miles north of Chattanooga, Tenn. A large crowd, as usual on Sunday, was present to witness the ascension. When she was 2000 to 3000 feet high the parachute was set adrift and began to fall rapidly and when it struck the water the spectators groaned. Mrs. Bruno was twenty-three years old, and was assisted by her husband.

Favorable Monsoon in India.

A dispatch from Simla, India, says that the monsoon has started in with full force on the west coast. In his speech, as reported in the papers, he was one of the first recognized, and said:

WARNING.

We wish to caution all users of Simmons Liver Regulator on a subject of the deepest interest and importance to their health—perhaps their lives. The sole proprietors and makers of Simmons Liver Regulator learn that customers are often deceived by buying and taking some medicine of a similar appearance or taste, believing it to be Simmons Liver Regulator. We warn you that unless the word Regulator is on the package or bottle, that it is not Simmons Liver Regulator. No one else makes, or ever has made Simmons Liver Regulator, or anything called Simmons Liver Regulator, but J. H. Zeilin & Co., and no medicine made by anyone else is the same. We alone can put it up, and we cannot be responsible, if other medicines represented as the same do not help you as you are led to expect they will. Bear this fact well in mind, if you have been in the habit of using a medicine which you supposed to be Simmons Liver Regulator, because the name was somewhat like it, and the package did not have the word Regulator on it, you have been imposed upon and have not been taking Simmons Liver Regulator at all. The Regulator has been favorably known for many years, and all who use it know how necessary it is for Fever and Ague, Bilious Fever, Constipation, Headache, Dyspepsia, and all disorders arising from a Diseased Liver.

We ask you to look for yourselves, and see that Simmons Liver Regulator, which you can readily distinguish by the Red Z on wrapper, and by our name, is the only medicine called Simmons Liver Regulator

PROTECTION.

President McKinley once said: "If commerce would thrive, manufacturers must flourish; if agriculture would enjoy markets and good prices, there must be conceded to enterprise and skill in manufactures just return for hazard and outlay; if artisans would receive good wages, they must be willing to pay fair prices to mechanics and farmers."

This is all very true. This country is operated upon a great, large plan of reciprocity. The vast amount of capital employed by our manufacturies, the great value of their products and the large number of people they employ entitles them to every friendly consideration. It is an error to suppose that their benefits stop with what they do for those who are directly connected with them or personally interested in their operations. They are materially advantageous to all other productive forces, and their operations tend constantly to promote the general welfare. When they are active and prosperous good times prevail, and when they are depressed hard timet always come.

In 1890 the factories of this country paid $691,400 for every working hour of every working day of the year. To-day they are not disbursing one-half that sum, and yet there is valid reason to doubt but that they would be doing so had they not been discouraged and embarrassed by the assault of a Democratic Congress in the form of the present tariff laws.

The favorable conditions that prevailed for them under Republican rule were changed in the interest of free trade, and the result has been suspensions, reduction of wages, loss of a home market for our farmers and producers, and distress and discontent where plenty and happiness heretofore existed.

These are the practical facts that refute all the theorizing of statesmen who declare that protection is a fraud and a robbery. A policy that antagonizes the manufacturing interests of the country is sure to be detrimental to all other interests.

HIT THE NAIL ON THE HEAD

Mr. William J. Bryan has a way at times of unintentionally hitting the political nail on the head. In a recent speech he made use of these words in relation to last fall's election:

I am sure that the study which the campaign excited will be, for years to come, productive of great good. Whenever the people commence to study political questions they carry their investigation to the point where they reach the best solution of the problems presented.

This is exactly what has come to pass. The study of last fall has already inaugurated the era of great good to which he referred, and the people did, as he suggests, carry their investigations to the point where they reached the best solution of the problems presented. But we discovered this on November 7. Mr. Bryan is a trifle late.

Nevertheless, we hasten to congratulate the recent Presidential Impossibility on having so accurately, if tardily, summed up the situation from the Republican point of view.

READY FOR INVESTMENT.

There is plenty of capital in the country waiting investment. The trouble is that people who have capital are afraid to invest because of uncertainty as to the business situation. There are industries waiting to start up when once the Tariff is settled. There is plenty of capital that could be employed it its owners knew what trade conditions would be for the next year.

Reterring to the last Democratic candidate for President, ex-Senator David B. Hill, in an address the other day, took occasion to remark that "the people of this country could not and would not stand a policy dictated by a crank, a demagogue and a political adventurer."

President McKinley said at Nashville: "Whatever adverse conditions may temporarily impede the pathway of our national progress, nothing can permanently defeat it." This is the old American spirit, and croakers will labor in vain to break it down.

Gen. Longstreet, whose health is said to be fairly good, lives on his Georgia farm with a tenant who was a soldier in the Union Army. The Blue and the Gray get along quite comfortably in that household.

The President's visit to the Nashville Exposition was greatly appreciated by the people in charge of the Fair. The people along the route gave him a cordial welcome.

While the number of Democrats is decreasing in the Senate they have the satisfaction of knowing that the varieties are multiplying.

A TARIFF ON COTTON,

When the tariff bill reaches the White House, and when it recives the President's signature, it will embody a duty upon all foreign cotton imported into the United States. The South demands Protection for Cotton as well as for Rice and Sugar. When we state that our imports of cotton have increased from less than 4,000,000 pounds in 1887 to 55,350,520 pounds in 1896, we believe that it will be conceded by all friends of Protection that there should be a check put to raw cotton imports which have increased at the annual rate of 138,400 bales within a decade. If foreign cotton is to be imported and take the place of American cotton, then let it pay a duty. A tariff 20 per cent ad valorem upon the last fiscal year's imports would have added upward of $1,300,000 to the revenue. We need revenue, and Southern cotton growers need Protection.

WE SHOULD PROVIDE FOR OUR OWN PEOPLE.

When we buy cheap foreign goods we take away from our own people to give to foreigners. This may, in one sense, be philanthropy. It may be the charity that holds out to the poor starving devil a piece of bread that was for ones self. It may be a beautiful example of self sacrifice and a noble tribute to humanity. But a Nation's charity begins at home. We must protect our own working men. We must provide labor for our own people. We must hold up their wages. This is the common sense, the practical business of legislation and government.

THE FARMER'S TABLE.

The farmer cannot govern the prices of wheat and corn, nor can he fix and keep the price of hogs. In the open market he is not only subject to the law of supply and demand, but is also to the gamblers in the market centers. But there is a place where the markets of the world need not worry him, or cause any uneasiness on account of the visible surplus, and that place is his own household, at his own table. We find the farmer's larder filled to overflowing, and not a whit behind that of the millionaire, who with his cash can only buy such as the grower puts upon the market.

The revolutionists in Cuba claim that they have 30,000 good men under arms, and have never been in so good a position to defy Spain as at the present time.

One thing is certain. The American people have no use for a party that tries to advance its fortunes by discouraging a hopeful spirit.

By special invitation Senator J. C. Pritchard addressed the Republican League of Maryland, in Baltimore, on the 9th inst.

President McKinley is elevating the American flag in Hawaii as prompt ly as Grover Cleveland pulled it down.

A contemporary remarks that the sign of prosperity is in the air is in the dejected air of the Bryan Democracy.

It is a very unhappy Democratic party when it cannot "get together" either on the currency or the tariff question.

Protection is dividing the ranks of the Democracy as thoroughly now as did the currency question a year ago.

The question of the day in the South is Protection, and it is gaining ground rapidly.

The Territory of Hawaii! How does that sound? It is going to be the next addition to Uncle Sam's family.

LITERARY NOTICES.

In an historical article recalling the destruction of our National capital by the British forces in 1814, Clifford Howard in the July "Ladies' Home Journal" will show that Dolly Madison, the most beloved and popular woman of her day, was courageous and fearless in the face of grave danger. In the mad stampede from Washington, that preceeded the invasion by the British troops, Dolly Madison was the last to seek safety in flight, and her final act before quitting the White House, as the enemy advanced, was to seize the Declaration of Independence and carry it to a place of safety As the White House was immediately afterward looted and burned by the British Mr. Howard declares that but for the brave Dolly Madison the priceless parchment would have been destroyed.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, June, 18, 1897.

President McKinley never did a more popular thing than when he signed his name to the treaty for the annexation of Hawaii as a territory of the United States. Eight of eleven members of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations are known to favor annexation so that a favorable report on the treaty from that committee is certain, and as fifty-five out of the necessary sixty votes to ratify the treaty are already as good as pledged, the prospect for its ratification is bright. However, should the Democrats carry out the threats that are now being made by some of them to delay a vote on the treaty in the Senate, it will be an easy matter to annex Hawaii by a joint resolution of the House and Senate, as was done when Texas was admitted to the Union, which will only require a majority vote. While President McKinley would prefer that the matter be disposed of at the present session, it is not absolutely necessary that it should be, as the treaty has given notice to the world of the intention of the United States to annex the islands. Should Japan make a formal protest, it will merely result in hurrying up annexation.

Had Senator Pettigrew's so-called anti-trust tariff amendment been of such a nature that it would really have operated against the trusts, it would have been adopted instead of being laid on the table by a vote of 35 to 32. Had the Democratic Senators voted their real sentiments the vote in favor of laying on the table would have been much larger, but with exception of Senators Morgan and Pettus, of Alabama, who both spoke against the amendment and voted to lay it on the table, they preferred to seem to be in favor of the amendment, so that they can use its failure to be adopted as a stump argument showing the Democrats to be against trusts and the Republicans to be for them. As a matter of cold, hard fact, the Pettigrew amendment would, if it were a law, create more trusts and cause more havoc to American producers and manufacturers than any law that was ever on the statute books. Under its provisions any three men could at any time force any line of manufactured articles or products upon the free lists by simply forming a trust to deal in those goods. The Republican Senators are just as anxious as anybody can be to curb the power of the trusts, but they do not intend to give them more power in legislation supposed to be against them, either through haste, ignorance or design.

Jerry Simpson quit making a monkey of himself by trying to play parliamentary tactics against Speaker Reed and hurried to Kansas, not because he was tired of playing monkey—he would rather be in the newspapers as a monkey than not to be there at all—but because there is a Populist plot being worked in his district to keep him from being renominated for Congress. According to Republican advices, it doesn't make any difference who gets the Populist nomination in the "Big Seventh" district of Kansas, as the district intends sending a Republican to the next House

Mr. Calhoun returned to Washington this week, bringing with him a detailed written report of his observations in Cuba, prepared to supplement the verbal report he made to President McKinley when he first returned from Cuba. Mr. Calhoun has not made and will not make any recommendation as to Cuba. His mission was to investigate and report existing conditions, and it has now been completed.

The cheekiest thing of the session is the attempt of certain Democrats to give the Wilson tariff law the credit for the increased receipts of the government from importations during the past three months, when everybody knows that the increase is due solely to the advance importations that are being made to escape the increased duties in the Republican tariff. Unfortunately no practical way of preventing the profit being realized on the advance importations has been devised, as it seems certain retroactive clause will not do it. These increased importations are bad for everybody except the men who make them. It is therefore surprising that Democrats can be found with so little judgment as to think, or even pretend to think, them creditable.

The Senate having passed the most disputed portions of the tariff bill rapidly dispose of the rest of the bill, as it is now meeting at 11, a. m., and putting in six solid hours of work daily.

An Unfortunnte Speculation.

The citizens of Raleigh chartered a train to run an excursion down to hear Bryan speak on Monday night. They expected to bring a large crowd and invested $500 for the train. When they started they had a small crowd and arrived in Portsmouth with only forty-nine passengers. This was rather an unfortunate speculation.—Virginian.

No Cure—No Pay.

The McKinley Temper.

If those who have seen most of him since the 4th of March were asked what trait of the President's character had impressed them especially, they would say his marvelous self-control. The adjective is right. The McKinley temper is marvelous. In the four years of a Presidential term the first quarter is the most trying. This President has passed through the ordeal. The first evidence of irritation is yet to be noted Mr. McKinley is a man of convictions. He does not hesitate to express disapproval. But he never yields to the petulance which attends upon annoyances. There have been great men in the White House, but history records explosions of passion from Washington all the way down the line to the present exception. This equipoise of Mr. McKinley is so remarkable that it has been spoken of frequently as a natural gift of great worth. The possessor has been congratulated as if it was an inheritance. The truth is this complete self-command is second, not first, nature with Mr. McKinley. It was acquired by such rigid training as seldom falls to the lot of man to follow.

"I remember McKinley," said one of his oldest friends, "as a man with his full share of impulsiveness. The time was when he gave way as other men do under strain or provocation. Do you want to know what wrought the change? For twenty-five years this man has stood between his wife and all that might give her the slightest worry. No matter what the load he was bearing, he has never failed to wear into her presence a pleasant face. Whatever emotions might be surging underneath, he has appeared calm and placid on the surface. This frail being owes her life to his shielding care. Self-control was born of that twenty-five years of devotion. There you have the whole explanation of what is so admirable in Mr. McKinley's character."

Weak Lungs

Hot weather won't cure weak lungs. You may feel better because out of doors more, but the trouble is still there. Don't stop taking your because the weather happens to be warm. If you have a weak throat, a slight hacking cough, or some trouble with the bronchial tubes, summer is the best time to get rid of it. If you are losing flesh there is all the more need of attention. Weakness about the chest and thinness should never go together. One greatly increases the danger of the other. Heal the throat, cure the cough, and strengthen the whole system now. Keep taking Scott's Emulsion all summer.

NOTICE!

ELECTION ON THE PUBLIC SCHOOL QUESTION.

"ON TUESDAY after the Second Monday in August, within the year 1897, the Board of County Commissioners of every county shall cause an election to be held in every school district in their respective counties upon the question of levying a special district (township) tax for the public schools of said district (township) and notice of this election shall be given by the County Commissioners at their regular June meeting. And such notice shall be published in the county papers and posted on the school houses of said district (township)."—Acts of General Assembly, 1897, Sections 2654 and 2655, as repealed by Acts, 1897.

OFFICE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS,
PASQUITANK COUNTY
Elizabeth City, N. C., June 7th, 1897.

In compliance with the order above set forth, it is ordered by the Board of Commissioners of said county, that an election be held at the time and for the purposes above set forth, under the provisions and regulations in the election for members of the General Assembly. And in said election to decide the question as to levying ten cents on the $100.00 property, and thirty cents on each poll as a special tax for schools, Notice is hereby given to all persons of said election and its purposes.

By order of the Board of Commissioners of Pasquotank County, N. C., June 7th, 1897.

T. P. WILCOX,
Sheriff of Pasquotank County.
June 7th, 1897.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common water glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is postive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. For a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail, mention the CAROLINIAN and send your full post-office address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.—34-29.

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets CURE CONSTIPATION

REGULATE THE LIVER

10¢ 25¢ 50¢ ALL DRUGGISTS

CANDY CATHARTIC	.....CASCARETS taste good. Fastidious like candy. They remove any bad taste in the mouth, leaving the breath sweet and natural. It is a real pleasure to take Cascarets instead of nauseating liquids or nauseous pills.
PURELY VEGETABLE	.....CASCARETS are purely vegetable and contain no mercurial or other mineral poison. They are made of the latest remedies discovered and are a scientific combination never before put together in any form.
ANTISEPTIC LAXATIVE	.....CASCARETS are antiseptic. That means they stimulate digested food from souring in the stomach, prevent fermentation in the bowels and kill disease germs of any kind that breed and feed in the system.
LIVER STIMULANT	.....CASCARETS tone the stomach and bowels and stimulate the lazy liver, making it work. They strengthen the bowels and put them into vigorous healthy condition, making their action easy and natural.
BOON FOR MOTHERS	.....CASCARETS increase the flow of milk in nursing mothers. A tablet eaten by the mother makes her milk mildly purgative and has a soothing but certain effect on the baby, the only safe laxative.
PLEASE THE CHILDREN	.....CASCARETS are liked by the children. They taste good and do good. They stop wind-colic and cramps, and kill and drive off worms, and all kinds of parasites that live in the bowels of the growing child.
CURE GUARANTEED	.....CASCARETS taken patiently, persistently, are guaranteed to cure any case of constipation, no matter how old and obstinate, or purchase money will be cheerfully refunded by your own druggist.
HEALTH FOR 10 CENTS	.....CASCARETS are sold by all druggists for 10c, 25c, 50c a box, according to size. A 10c box will prove their merit and put you on the right road to perfect and permanent health. Don't risk delay.

☞Don't judge CASCARETS by other medicines you have tried. They are new, unlike anything else that's sold, and infinitely superior. Try a 10c box to-day, if not pleased get your money back! Larger boxes, 25c or 50c. Sample and booklet mailed free. Address

The storm referred to in our last issue was more severe and destructive in parts of Camden and Currituck. In addition to terrific wind, there was hail, in places two inches deep. Crops were ruined, trees blown down, window panes shattered—all presenting a scene of devastation.

The cynical Philosopher takes occasion to remark that during the past few weeks the college graduate has been getting on the rostrum and uttering great thoughts—thoughts, in fact, that have been thought by the greatest thinkers. He calls them "bubbles in the air."

Letters of inquiry about Water Works continue to be received. The Corporation does not contemplate building them, but simply proposes to grant a franchise to a responsible party to establish and operate a plant. There will be no undue haste. Steps are in progress to obtain full information in order to act intelligently and for the best interests of the City.

The death of the venerable Timothy D. Pendleton, which occurred at the residence of his daughter Mrs J. P. Grandy, at Norfolk, on Thursday last, removes another long time prominent citizen of Elizabeth City. Everybody knew genial and big-hearted "Uncle Tim," and everybody respected him. He was among the number who gave us a cordial welcome when we located here 29 years ago, and he remained a steadfast friend. His age was 79 years. His remains were brought here on Friday and interred in the Cemetery. Peace to his memory.

The following fully explains itself:

TO THE LADIES OF ELIZABETH CITY:

The Elizabeth City Division of the Naval Battallion of North Carolina State Guard most sincerely thanks the Ladies of Elizabeth City for their invaluable assistance at the recent Bazaar. The Division further acknowledges its deep obligation to the citizens of the town for the interest which they have manifested. It is a pleasure to each member of this Division to know that it has never appealed in vain to our citizens.

The Closing Exercises of the Atlantic Collegiate Institute last week, were, from beginning to end, fully up to public expectation. The program each night was judiciously arranged, well prepared and successfully presented, all reflecting credit upon the students who took part in the exercises and, too, upon the teachers of the Institute. The Annual Address was delivered on Wednesday night by E. E. Hilliard esq., editor of the Scotland Neck Commonwealth. His theme was "The Moulding of a Great Character." It was original, pertinent, logical and eloquent—one of the best addresses we have heard for a long time. He is both a thinker and an orator. While not in the full sense an optimist he is far from being a pessimist. The graduating exercises took place on Thursday night. Diplomas were presented by the President to Messrs J. C. Wood, Everett Thompson, Frank Hollowell and Harry Greenleaf, and to Misses Rose Lathrop, Ethel Blythe, Ella Pritchard and Lizzie Twiddy. The girl's medal was awarded to Miss Retta Gray, of Dare, and the boy's to Mr. Everton Walker, of Currituck.

——Under the wise and efficient management of President Sheep, this Institute now ranks among the best Schools in the State. Every citizen of Elizabeth City should feel proud of it and do what he can to encourage and sustain it.

"A Reader" asks: "Do Democrats ever think, when they are complaining that good times are not already here, they are paying the Republican party the highest possible compliment by showing how much more they expect of it than they did of their own party?"

The man who has no happiness in life is one who doesn't wear Moses Weisel's perfect fitting shirts.

Pessimists, croakers, calamity howlers, to the rear! The times are showing signs of improving. All signs point to a return of prosperous conditions; not a time for wild and reckless speculation, but for legitimate business enterprises to prosper as the result of conservative management and well directed effort.

Its a peach! that $1.25 Overcoats for boys at Moses Weisel's, sizes from 5 to 15 years, with capes.

To "Voter" the CAROLINIAN replies that nothing can be more evident than that Free Trade is dead as an issue in National politics. The only disputes as to customs duties that can now arise are as to their detailed application. It is no longer a difference of principle; it has narrowed itself down to a question of schedules.

The man who doesn't turn up at Moses Weisel's Gents Furnishing Goods sale is very apt to be turned down by judges of elegant styles.

Admit it, if you must, the lack of great men. It is a great century. Better the coming of a recent mankind than a lonely perfect man here and there. Better many tall and strong men than one huge Atlas. We are consoled in the lack of prodigies by the lack of fools. The brains of the world are more evenly distributed, and good conduct is not a monopoly.

How are you off for Blankets. We have 'em, the best to be had from 50c the pair to $5. Moses Weisel.

An exchange reports that a man has been found who, being necessarily absent from home on business, was thrown into a paroxysm of joy by hearing the cry of his new-born baby boy, some 300 miles distant, through the telephone. A little later he will probably consent to walk some distance and cut all the telephone wires within reach to get away from that same baby's vocal efforts.

A wise man doesn't like to admit that he has been foolish twice in the same way. If he forgets to buy his Neckties of Moses Weisel one day, he manages to drop into the store the next time he needs a supply.

Farmers who rely upon the fertility of their soil for success may be disappointed if they do not give good preparation and thorough cultivation to the crops. While the soil may possess a large amount of plant food, yet it must be presented to the plants in the most available form. Much of the matter of the soil is inert, and is reduced by the roots of the plant, but this can be done most effectively only when the soil is in fine condition and every portion of it within the reach of the plant.

Too Poor for Bankruptcy.

"Why don't you go into bankruptcy?" asked Judge Emden, of the Lambeth county court, England, when Mr. Caswell, a sausage manufacturer of Camberwell, candidly admitted that he could not pay his debts except by small installments. "I am a poor man and can't afford it," replied the latter, who seemed to regard his honor's question as tantamount to asking a man with only twopence in his pocket why he did not treat himself to turtle soup and milk punch. Such luxuries as bankruptcy are not meant for the poor, and he sighed as he added: "You can't become bankrupt unless you have money." "Ah, yes," replied his honor, "quite true. A man in your position cannot indulge in the luxury of bankruptcy." So the unfortunate sausagemaker was ordered to pay up at the rate of ten shillings per month or go to jail for fourteen days.

Is China Awakening?

It is said that since her recent defeat by Japan the Ministers of China have altogether changed their attitude toward European teachers. Formerly no European could walk through the streets of a Chinese city without being frequently insulted. But now even the common people have changed their attitude toward foreigners. A new Chinese dollar has recently been coined at Pei-yang, and bears on one side the English words, "Twenty-second year of Kawang Shu, Pei-Yang," which is taken as a proof of the growing influence of foreign customs. Christian teachers are actually being encouraged in many parts, and some Chinese mandarins have declared that the adoption of Christianity would undoubtedly lead to a great alteration in the place of China among civilized Nations.

A Darker Africa.

Dr. Schulz, who has just returned to London from Africa, says that "the public impression that the continent of Africa is no longer the unexplored area of the old map is a mistake." What has been done is to stake out territories along definite routes, but within these lines the country is generally as unknown as in the time of Mungo Park. Dr. Schulz has traversed and surveyed a vast tract of country which no white traveler has ever seen before. This new territory lies between the British dominions in the west and northwest, and the Congo and German territories in the southwest and west. Through these unknown lands flows a large river called by the natives Chobe, which empties itself into the Zambeze.

The Bicycle Threatened.

This country has witnessed so many revolutions in methods of locomotion that he is a bold man who ventures to declare what may not happen in matters of that sort. The steam locomotive is much younger than many men now living, and there are many who predict that it will be a back number before many more years have passed. The predictions of the general substitution of electricity for steam as a motive power are becoming more frequent and more confident. This generation will probably see their fulfillment in a large measure. And now comes from no less noted a seer than Thomas A. Edison that the bicycle is in danger of losing something of its wonderful and rapidly acquired popularity. Mr. Edison believes that there will soon be on the market a light and noiseless motor-bicycle which will retail at $100 or less, and says that when the new machine appears it will make the bicycle take second place as rapidly as the bicycle has displaced the horse. There are now many makes of horseless carriages, and they are being improved constantly. They are still so expensive, however, that their use is very limited, and they are seldom seen outside of the great cities.

Such a motor-vehicle as Mr. Edison expects would certainly cut deep into the bicycle business, but at present the bicycle moves ahead conquering and to conquer. And no matter what may come the bicycle will remain with us for the convenience, comfort and joy of mankind, even though some new-fangled thing should capture a part of its present constituency.—Atlanta Journal.

Rapid Motion Affects Children.

Dr. John Madison Taylor, in an article on "Children of Feeble Resistance; Their Care and Management," published in the Medical Times and Hospital Gazette, December 19, 1896, says that it is very unwise to submit babies to rapid journeys and the looking out of windows at swiftly passing objects while flying along. He says that he has seen migraine develop apparently through the custom of giving small children exercise in a carriage with a pair of fast horses every day. Certain instances of profound disturbance have been caused by this means, and it is reasonable to infer that a continuance of such measures may produce lasting damage upon so delicate an organ as the eye, and the whole sensitive organism is thus imperiled. It is also unwise to encourage a child to sleep while being driven about. The motion is both regular and subject to sudden irregularities. The persistence of one kind of motion up and down is bad, not only producing unsound sleep, but keeping up a molecular agitation which has little to recommend it. If the infant be sufficiently old to sit up or be held up by the nurse, a strain is put upon the spinal column. Thus continuous mild concussions are administered to the brain and spinal cord; the eye is put upon a strain, thus acting directly upon the brain; an element of excitement is introduced, and physiological irritability is the probable result.—Medical Record.

A Great Dane Hypnotized.

Charles L. Brown, a colored peddler, is locked up at Station 3 for the theft of a bicycle from Mrs. Margaret Deland, the authoress. Last Saturday afternoon Mr. Lorin F. Deland, his wife and the family governess, upon their return from a ride, left their wheels in the yard of their house on Mount Vernon street. Late that night a noise was heard in the yard, but as the watch dog failed to bark at the intruder no notice was taken of it.

In the morning it was discovered that Mrs. Deland's bicycle had been stolen. The police traced the wheel to Brown's house Brown admitted the theft, and said he took the bicycle for his wife. Mrs. Deland's watch dog is a great Dane, a gift from English friends, a most vigilant caretaker ordinarily, How Brown kept him quiet is a mystery. The man's neighbors says that he is master of a strange hypnotic power that enables him to subdue the fiercest animals by the power of his eye.—Boston Herald.

Railroads Conquer China.

The Chinese government is slowly but surely pushing forward the railroad from Tientsin to Pekin, and it is expected that soon the traveler will be able to go by rail from the seashore to the gates of the mysterious capital. This will add about ninety miles to the 124 of the road from Tientsin to the Kaiping coal mines, which now constitute the railway system of China. The spell of prejudice has been broken and several other railway enterprises are now on foot. The chief of these, a great trunk line from Pekin southwesterly to Hankow on the coast, a distance of some 1400 miles, has already been started, with a small government subsidy, but its rapid construction is not to be expected. A short road from Shanghai to Woosung is also in progress.

Jelly From Coal.

In Perthshire lately, workmen engaged in cutting some deep drainage trenches dug into a bed of old peat some feet below the surface. At the bottom of this was a layer six inches thick of a kind of tough, black jelly. Some of it was thrown out, and soon dried in the sun, when it was found to have hardened into a brittle substance not unlike anthracite coal. It burned with a clear, bright flame, and left an ash quite like ordinary coal. All coal has been peat at one time or another, and here it is supposed we have caught it in the actual process of transformation.

For foreign navies the private shipyards of the United Kingdom are building twenty-eight vessels.

SING A SONG.

If you'll sing a song as you go along,
In the face of the real or the fancied wrong;
In spite of the doubt if you'll fight it out,
And show a heart that is brave and stout;
If you'll laugh at the jeers and refuse the tears,
You'll force the ever-reluctant cheers
That the world denies when a coward cries,
To give to the man who bravely tries;
And you'll win success with a little song—
If you'll sing the song as you go along!

If you'll sing a song as you plod along,
You'll find that the busy rushing throng
Will catch the strain of the glad refrain;
That the sun will follow the blinding rain;
That the clouds will fly from the blackened sky;
That the stars will come out by and by;
And you'll make new friends, till hope descends
From where the placid rainbow bends;
And all because of a little song—
If you'll sing a song as you plod along!

If you'll sing a song as you trudge along,
You'll see that the singing will make you strong;
And the heavy load and the rugged road,
And the sting and the stripe of the tortuous goad
Will soar with the note that you set afloat;
That the beam will change to a trifling mote;
That the world is bad when you are sad,
And bright and beautiful when glad;
That all you need is a little song—
If you'll sing the song as you trudge along!
—Rufus M. Fields in Nashville American.

The Lost Manuscript.

BY ELIZABETH HOOVER.

This morning Herr Dorner was a happy man. A profitable season was just closing; he had been the recipient of many charming notes and invitations; his photographs were in demand at all the leading booksellers; New York was alive with his praises, and, best of all, he had health and ambition. So life seemed very rosy to a man of thirty who looked forward to years of fame and pleasure, having the plaudits and murmurs from past triumphs to encourage him and call forth his best efforts.

He smiled affectionately at the sheet of paper before him. "Now, thou art finished, liedchen," he said, half aloud. "The joy in my heart is thy joy—the gleam of the sunshine is thy melody," and humming lightly the little air, he passed down the hotel stairs and out into the glad May morning.

Alas! fate decreed that Herr Dorner had seen the last of his manuscript for two long years, and in that time it underwent many changes in outward appearance and saw many wonderful things.

The great pianist himself started it on its journey, whisking it from its place on the table as he picked up his gloves.

His valet had rescued it from a corner, laying it upon a pile of letters and papers, thinking the Herr would see it, but a breeze wandered in, and with the sonnet as partner, they danced a breathless galop about the apartment, finally coming to a standstill behind a sofa.

Then Herr Dorner, having completed his series of concerts, went away, and the maid who put the apartment in order carried our little song out to the dustbox. But along came the little breeze again, and enticed the sonnet into a gay waltz, leaving her against the elevator cage to regain her breath.

Madeline Loring saw it there, idly glancing it over thought it pretty—no name—no sign of ownership—and finally it found its way, folded, with a bent corner and a few tatters to bear witness to its experiences, into Miss Loring's shopping bag. Here the paper must pause in its narrative, for it became a staid sheet of music thereafter, seeing and hearing nothing remarkable for two years.

"Sing for us tomorrow night, Madeline, won't you?" asked Jack Denham, as he lay back on his pillows. The girl flushed as she said, "Please don't ask me! and please don't ask why." But the combined efforts of Lady Snowdon, her daughter her invalid nephew and a little M. Lefevre, the music master, at last brought an unwilling consent from their fair American.

Genevieve and her mother discussed the subject later when Madeline had gone for a drive with Jack. "So unwilling to appear before guests, when she owes you so much," grumbled the young lady. Good Lady Snowdon tried to excuse her ward, but was forced to admit that Madeline's conduct was inexplicable. She sang freely and willingly when M. Lefevre or the family were her audience. Nothing soothed Jack's pain as did her tender lullabies and little songs, but never could they persuade her to sing before strangers.

The music for Wednesday night promised much. Herr Dorner, the great, would appear, Mlle. Favorita was to sing, M. de Mortille would play violin numbers and Madeline, with her fresh beauty and exquisite voice, had at last consented to make her initial appearance.

Upstairs in her room Madeline heard the first guests arriving, and giving a final glance at her flushed face crowned with the masses of pale brown hair, she murmured:

"They hate me—'The little American'—I have waited until I know what I can do, and they shall praise me tonight."

The chattering, laughing throng in Lady Snowdon's rooms gave attention to Mlle. Favorita's aria, to M. de Mortille's long sonata for violin and piano, and now were surprised into giving some slight notice to the tall fair girl with the blood-red roses in her pale hair, as she took her place by the piano. "The little American," they said, as she knew they would, and their tones expressed surprise and indulgence, nothing more.

The first notes came to them like a tender call,—fuller, richer rang out the glorious voice until their very hearts stopped beating,—the song ceased. An instant's silence broken by a buzz of eager exclamations and hearty applause. "Wonderful!" "Exquisite!" "Where has she been hidden!" "Encore!" until bowing and smiling the great Herr Dorner himself offered his arm to the blushing girl, saying, "Ach! such voice! And the notes, may I not haf the pleasure of assisting you to find them?" Little M. Lefevre was bustling about. "What will you sing, Miss Loring—shall it be this—or this?" Madeline dismissed the great man with a smile and the small one with an "I will play," and seating herself, began a sprightly, bright little accompaniment, blending her voice almost imperceptible into it. A joyous song of birds, springtime, sunshine, fragrant with the odor of violets, pulsating with life and overflowing with gladness, dancing and glancing, a bewitching melody gliding into an impassioned

"I love thee—for thou my sunshine art—
My Spring art thou—my flowers thy eyes—
Thou art my all—my earth, my skies."

After the richness of the last tones had melted on the silence, applause again broke out, but Madeline refused to sing more. Her triumph was secure. She was no longer the "little American."

That night Herr Dorner paced his room in a fame of mind not exactly peaceful.

For the first time in his life he was utterly unable to account for this little sonnet, which was so familiar,—every ripple—every note was written on his brain. He sat at his piano and played it. There was a little brook—violets—birds! He knew it—he knew the composer's frame of mind when it was written—but where had he heard it? In the spirit world perhaps.

He heard it in the earliest twitterings of the sparrows. The first gleam of the morning sun brought it in. It danced and glanced across the pile of mail beside him at breakfast, and finally, in desperation, he hailed a cab, and regardless of the time of day went without delay to Lady Snowdon's

He paced about the beautiful reception room until Madeline's appearance, and then without greeting or preface, burst forth into, "Ach! Miss Loring—it ees the leetle sonnet!—Who haf written it?"

Madeline looked in astonishment at the Herr. In truth it was not strange, for his pale, hagged face and disheveled hair made a queer fingure of the usually faultlessly-gotten-up gentleman.

"The little sonnet?" she repeated. "Oh, yes, 'Sunshine' as I call it. Why, I'm sorry to say that I don't know the composer's name."

Herr Dorner's face fell. "Not know?" he faltered.

"I will show you the music," Madeline continued, leading the way to the music room. I fancy this bit of paper has a history. I found it in a New York hotel, and—" but she was interrupted by the Herr, who on seeing the manuscript recognized his own work, and exclaimed, "Ach, Himmel! mine liedchen—thou art found!"

To make a long story short, the Herr's London engagement was prolonged. He was a frequent visitor at Snowdon Court, and Lady Snowdon had the satisfaction of seeing her ward safely married to a great man, who lost his heart when he found his manuscript.

And "all for a song."—The Housewife.

HOG WAS BADLY FOOLED.

Mean Trick that Was Played on an Innocent Shoat.

"The meanest trick that was ever invented was played on a hog," said Uncle John, as he lighted his pipe and settled back in his chair for an hour after dinner smoke. "A neighbor of ours owned this hog, and he was a mighty wise critter, as my story will show. This neighbor also owned a large cornfield, among other possessions, and this cornfield was well guarded by a fence with one gate. Well, this old porker had the liberty of a field next to the corn patch, and the farmer was astonished one day to find the hog wandering around in the forbidden territory. The gate had not been opened and there was no apparent break in the fence. Farmer Joe drove him out, but next day he was back again. He chased him up and down the fence but to no purpose. The hog would go out only through the gate, though it was certain he had not entered by that way.

"Farmer Joe was curious, and decided to keep a watch and solve the porcine mystery. In the early morning the hog skirted the fence until he came to a huge log which formed part of it. The log was hollow, and by some effort the hog squeezed through and entered upon the promised land. Nothing could induce him to go back by that entrance and the gate had to be again opened.

"Upon examination Farmer Joe discovered that the log was crooked and half circular in shape. With the aid of a hired man he pried it around so that both ends opened into the vacant field. The next morning Mr. Hog started for the cornfield as usual. He trotted along the fence until he came to the log, and worked his way into the hollow log. After a moment he emerged at the opposite end of the log. He was probably the most surprised hog in history. He looked around in a dazed way and then gazed reproachfully at the log. Again he entered the log and again he emerged on the wrong side of the fence. Thus he spent the forenoon, and only gave up the task when it was apparent that some one had done him wrong.

"There is a moral in this story," said Uncle John, as he lighted another match," but you can apply it to suit yourself. I am afraid that as a people we too often resemble Farmer Joe's hog, and that no matter what we do we come out on the same side of the fence."—Chicago Times Herald

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

Criticism is often the resort of ignorance.

Poverty is one thing that cannot be long concealed.

It takes two to make a bargain, but it's only one that gets it.

A friend is most a friend of whom the best remains to learn.

A fool can do more damage in a minute than a wise man can undo in a year.

The foolish and the dead alone never change their opinion, once said Abraham Lincoln.

Monuments don't make great men remembered, but great men make monuments remembered.

Whenever the people discover some new amusement, the preachers label it sin, in big red letters.

Conscience makes cowards. If its absence meant the reverse, the world would be full of heroes.

There is hope for the man who doesn't have to fall down more than once to learn how to stand up.

The man who drops a penny on the contribution plate and expects a golden crown, has faith to burn.

The most exquisite times in most people's lives are those when they are, perhaps unconsciously, expecting something.

Women have more than their rights already; the swish of a skirt may captivate a man's soul, but who ever heard of a romance based on creased trousers?

It is interesting to notice how often a man becomes that which his friends or society expects him to be. He will rarely disappoint us when we show him that we have faith in him, and anticipate good results; and this fact is full of suggestion to those who seek opportunities for doing good.

A golden rule which will often save us from petty worries, is to strive resolutely to allow only our own conduct to affect our mental condition, to rest satisfied with doing our very best, and, having done this, to disregard the possible failure of others to attain our own particular standard.—The South West.

A systematic account of all living animals, the first attempted since Linnæus' "Systema Nature," has been undertaken by the German Zoological society. It is estimated that 386,000 species of living animals have been described so far in all kinds of scattered publications. The list, which is to be edited by Professor F. E. Schulze, will consist of at least 120 volumes of 1000 pages each.

A Polish chemist is said to have invented an anæsthetic which volatizes rapidly upon exposure to the air, rendering the persons near unconscious for a long time. It is calculated that in warfare a bomb exploded in the midst of the enemy would have the effect of putting the entire body to sleep. A pellet of the substance broken under a man's nose put him to sleep for four hours.

The appeal of Professor John Milne, for the establishment of seismological stations in various parts of the earth, seems to be meeting a satisfactory response. Harvard university has already promised to co-operate by agreeing to equip and maintain an observatory in Peru. Some of the British self-governing colonies have also promised to come into line. Professor Milne hopes that fully fifty stations for observing the seismic movements of the earth may be eventually established.

Buttons Made of Milk

For a long time buttons and other articles for which bone is generally used have been made from congealed blood, purchased at the slaughter-houses and treated with some substance that hardens it to the sufficient consistency. The same articles can be made from milk by a process invented by an Englishman. The milk used is the skim milk. The process of turning this liquid into buttons, pool balls, combs, backs of hair brushes and similar articles consists, says the Philadelphia Times, of mixing it with a substance, the ingredients of which are a secret of the inventor, and compressing it. At the end of three days the substance is as solid as celluloid and is ready to be cut and shaped in any way the manufacturer wishes. At present a factory in Holland is engaged in fashioning the hardened milk into various articles, buttons, being the chief. The buttons made in this peculiar way differ very little in appearance from ordinary bone buttons. They are a creamy white in appearance, but can be colored black or red or any other color by simply mixing the coloring matter with the milk before the hardening process begins. They are said to possess advantages over the bone and celluloid article in being less brittle and less liable to chip. For combs the milk substance has been found to be especially well adapted, as it is smooth and delicate to the touch and derives from its creamy origin a glossy surface. In the same way it is a good substitute for ivory in billiard and pool balls.

The First Steam Power.

The power of steam was known to Hero of Alexandria, who exhibited what seems, from the description, to have been a small steam engine to Ptolemy Philadelphus and his court about 150 B. C. Pliny describes a small boat, built by a "magician" of Rome, which moved by means of a wheel "driven by a pot of hot water." Watt's invention of a rotary steam engine was patented in 1769. The first railroad locomotive was built by Trevithick in 1804. The first pratical locomotive was perfected by Stephenson, in 1829. As early as 1707 Denys Papin built a model of a steamboat, which was destroyed by a mob of boatmen. The first practical steamboat was built William Symington in 1802. In 1803 Robert Fulton, in connection with Chancellor Livingston, built a steamboat which was tried on the Seine. In 1807 the Clermont began trips from New York to Albany.

How Sugar is Made White.

The way in which sugar is made perfectly white, it is said, was found out in a curious way. A hen that had gone through a mud-puddle went with her muddy feet into a sugar house. It was observed by some one that wherever the tracks were the sugar was whitened. This led to some experiments. The result was, the wet clay came to be used in refining sugar.

It is used in this way: The sugar is put into earthen jars, shaped as you see the sugar-loaves are. The large ends are upwards. The smaller ends have a hole in them. The jar is filled with sugar, the clay put over the top and kept wet. The moisture goes down through the sugar, and drops from the hole in the small end of the jar. This makes the sugar perfectly white.—Home Queen.

The Magnet in the Extraction of Ores.

At the Franklin Furnace, in New Jersey, an Edison plant is being operated with magnets for extracting ore. The magnets are arranged in sets and occupy a length of about one mile, the ore passing this line. The magnets are arranged in tiers of five, the first or upper ones are very weak, but they gradually increase until those at the bottom are very powerful. It is claimed that the first set of magnets will extract 62 per cent. of the oxide of iron; the second set takes up about seventy-five per cent., and in some cases eighty-five per cent. has been secured. The ore is ground very fine and the experiment has thus far proven a great success.

High Art.

"Of course," said the man of genius, "you understand that I devote myself exclusively to art in its highest applications."

"This is right in your line," replied Mr. Cumrox, encouragingly. "What I want is to have a couple of ceilings frescoed"—Washington Star.

HELPS FOR HOUSEWIVES.

Clean Walls Up and Down.

In cleaning frescoed or papered walls put a soft Canton flannel bag (fleecy side out) on a broom and wipe them down, beginning at the cornice and coming straight down to the base board with an even pressure. All walls should be cleaned straight up and down, never across. Change the bags frequently if the walls are much soiled. Put in the wash with the dusters and press them out on ironing day. Flannel is also highly recommended for cleaning papered walls.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Charming Desserts of Oranges.

The housewife who makes large use of oranges will make no dietetic error. Next to the apple it is considered the best of all the fruits that are within the reach of the multitude, being so cheap that they cost but little more than potatoes at some seasons of the year. There are many charming desserts that can be made of oranges, but the very healthiest way to use them is to free them of skin and white pith, remove the seeds and slice, putting over them fine granulated sugar. A delicious orange beverage is made by using the juice of two lemons and the juice and pulp of half a dozen oranges, or in that proportion to two quarts of water, with cracked ice in it. Serve it with a long-handled spoon in a tall glass. When sweetened to taste, for which you pass round sugar, it is delicious and refreshing. Limes may be substituted for lemons.—Washington Star.

Starch Polish.

Laundresses, housekeepers and men who are particular about the looks of their linen, have been more or less worried because they could not secure the high lustre and finish to their collars and cuffs. A scientist has put his wits at work to prepare a compound that will give the desired finish without injury to the articles on which it is employed. The results of this research are herewith given: Heat together 90 parts of spermaceti, 50 parts of gum arabic, 50 parts of borax, 120 parts of glycerine and 750 parts of rain or distilled water, with constant stirring until complete solution is achieved. Let cool and fill into suitable bottles, which must be thoroughly stoppered. Directions: Take one ounce of good starch and add just enough cold water to make a paste, carefully rubbing with a spoon until all lumps are broken down. To one pint of boiling water add five tablespoonfuls of this liquid, pour the whole over the starch paste and boil not less than half an hour. These proportions are intended for collars, cuffs and fine shirt bosoms. For other articles less of the liquid is required."—The Ledger.

To Make a House Cool.

It is possible to make a city home look cool and comfortable with small expenditure. Take down all of the draperies of wool or silk. Brush them thoroughly and pack away in newspaper and moth balls. Seal the paper and then sew in a cotton or linen bag. Dotted muslin curtains only should be placed at the windows. If the hardwood floors are out of condition cover them with inexpensive matting. Furniture can be made cool and refreshing with slip covers of linen or cretonne. Cover lounges, chairs and pillows, if convenient, with the same material. Remove the heavy coverlets or ornamental spreads from the beds and replace them with dainty, light dimity coverings. A room just made ready for the warm months is done in blue and white cotton crape. At the windows are sash curtains of dotted muslin. The floor is covered with coarse white matting. Another room in the same house is in green and white sateen. Sage green matting is used for the floor. If possible fill dining room windows with flowering plants. They will not only refresh the eye, but they will promote appetite. All elaborate ornaments are enjoyed additionally if they are kept from view during the summer, and their removal makes the housewife's cares less.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Air of Bedrooms.

When there is much water in the atmosphere, those who breathe it are to a certain extent deprived of their due supply of oxygen, and the beginning of suffocation is perceived in their chests. Most middle aged and all old persons and those with weak hearts or impaired lungs have experienced this. The air of bedrooms is exceedingly liable to be overcharged with watery vapor, the most obvious reason being that many bedrooms are never warmed with fires and that their windows are often left open until dusk and sometimes even to the hour of going to bed. A delicate or an aged person leaves, say, at 11.30 a sitting room in which the temperature was 68 degrees and enters a cold, damp bedroom with a temperature of, say, 38 degrees. The air in the sitting room was dry, perhaps a little too dry. The air in the bedroom is loaded with cold, watery vapor. So soon as the person enters the bedroom he chokes and gasps and coughs for half an hour at least and sometimes brings on such an attack of asthma, or, as he calls it, "stuffiness" of the chest, that he can hardly breathe at all. He may even lose his night's sleep and be ill for some days after such an exposure. Common sense says, "Make an effort to bring the atmosphere of the bedroom nearer in point both of dryness and of warmth to the atmosphere of the sitting room, and then the occupant will not gasp, choke or cough, but will go to sleep with ease and comfort."

Delicate Soups.

Noodle Soup—Put a well-grown fat chicken in a soup kettle with three quarts of cold water, stand over the fire and let come to a boil. Skim and let simmer for two hours; add one onion, a sprig of parsley and thyme, and let simmer one hour longer. Season with pepper, salt, and a squeeze of lemon juice.

Asparagus Soup—Wash a bunch of asparagus, and put it in a saucepan of boiling water. Let boil until tender. Take from the water, cut off the tops, and put them aside. Press the stalks through a colander, add them to a quart of milk and set over the fire to boil; thicken the soup with a tablespoonful each of butter and flour rubbed together. Add the asparagus tops, season with salt and pepper and serve.

Normandy Soup—Melt a quart of veal stock and put it on to boil with two dozen small white onions. Let simmer slowly for one hour. Slice a loaf of bread and add to the soup, let boil very gently for an hour longer. Take up, strain, thicken with a little butter and flour rubbed together, return to the kettle, add a pint of cream, season with a few drops of Price's extract of cloves, and mace, salt, black pepper and a dash of cayenne. Serve immediately.

ONE WOMAN'S CASE.

A COMMON MALADY AND A REMARKABLE CURE.

From the Herald, Boston, Mass.

When a great, popular remedy rises to such remarkable success as to be a worthy theme of comment in a whole section it may fairly be treated as a matter of news rather than mere business, because it is in a sense a public benefactor. In view of this fact a lady reporter was deputed to investigate personally the remarkable tonic and curative effect which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had shown, particularly in cases of nervous weakness and general debility, numerous instances of its efficacy in this class having been noted, especially in the vicinity of Boston.

A typical case was readily found in the experience of Mrs. Mary A. Conway, living on Erie street, Dorchester, Mass., who had been, according to her own testimony, suffering for a long time with physical and nervous weakness, accompanied by palpitation of the heart and irregularity of functions.

"It is true," she said, "that I have met with a remarkable restoration through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For some time I was completely run down, and the care of a family was a great strain upon me. My lips were white and my heart palpitated so severely that I could not go up and down stairs without great distress. My digestion, too, was weak, and I can truly say that I was suffering from a general lack of vitality.

"I took Pink Pills with misgivings, but after taking only a small quantity I was agreeably surprised to find that they were all and more than they had been described to be.

"From the very first time of taking the pills I began to notice their beneficial effect, and I found myself gradually and rapidly overcoming the varied physical weaknesses that seemed to have fastened upon me; my white lips were restored to their normal tinge, I regained color in my face, and as for the heart trouble I may say that it has completely vanished, and I can now go up and down stairs without any palpitation whatever. Heretofore I had black specks before my eyes and a tendency to dizziness, but now my head is clear and my vision is unimpaired.

"I shall continue to use the Pink Pills," said Mrs. Conway, "and to recommend them to my friends. I have found them to do great benefit, and I find that their use not only relieved me of the particular trouble which I had, but acted as a general tonic for my whole system. It seems to me that the more they are known the more they will come into general use, for people have been so often deceived as to remedies that claim to cure everything that they are glad to find one that does exactly what is claimed for it."

Inquiries of physicians and apothecaries in this section also indicate that such cases as that of Mrs. Conway are proving to be the prototypes of many others.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are now given to the public as an unfailing blood builder and nerve restorer, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves. The pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Goat Devours Greenbacks.

The treasurer of a Michigan township accounted for the disappearance of $400 in greenbacks by declaring that a goat had devoured the bills. A post-mortem examination showed that the statement was true. The four-footed epicure had come across the township funds in an iron pot under the treasurer's house and made haste to enjoy the first mess of greens of the season.

It has become the practice to charge deficits and disappearances of public funds to extravagance, defalcations and other forms of official misconduct, but in view of the experience of this Michigan township would it not be well to find out if there is not some other explanation of reduced or empty treasuries? The fault may not lie so much with tariffs, expensive legislation and dishonest treasurers as with lean and hungry goats.—Buffalo (N. Y.) Express.

BICYCLE EXCITEMENT.

BENJ. S. LOVELL, Treas. Lovell Arms Co.

The greatest sensation of the season in the bicycle market has been occasioned by four of the leading manufacturers combining to protect the retail trade from being imposed upon by agents and others who have no reputation to lose, as bicycle dealers. This combination, of which the John P. Lovell Arms Co. are the moving spirits, have forced down the price of high grade wheels so that there is now no reason why a cyclist should ride anything but a first-class, guaranteed wheel, and at prices charged from the nameless and unguaranteed wheels. There is considerable opposition to this combination on the part of those who handle low grade wheels, but the public will be the winners, thanks to the Lovell Arms Co. A catalogue of our regular bicycle stock and a special list of wheels issued by the Big Four Combination mailed free on application.

Longevity.

Professor Luigi Dambon, of Rome, attempts to prove that northern latitudes do not conduce to longevity. He says the average Arab outlives the average Esquimo by no less than twenty-five years, and that the people who live on the unhealthy coasts of South America survive the inhabitants of the higher and cooler altitudes of the interior. The natives of India live to a surprising old age. Even in Europe people live longer in the south than in the North. Among the 27,000,000 in England there are but 145 centenarians, while in Spain, with a population of only 18,000,000 there are 400 centenarians. "Go South, young man."

Insomnia.

Sir James Crichton Browne, the expert on brain diseases, holds that insomnia is not attended with such serious astrous consequences as is commonly supposed. It is not as dangerous to the solicitude of the sufferer. He suggests that the brains of literary men, who are the most frequent victims, acquire the trick of the heart, which takes a doze of a fraction of a second after each beat and so manages to get six hours' rest in twenty-four. Some brains, in cases of insomnia, sleep in sections, different brain centers going off duty in turn.
